

What our members are saying about the value of membership

Chairing the Tasmanian Committee of Consult Australia is a privilege and an honour. It has given me the opportunity to represent our committee and our industry to clients and State Government Ministers, to bring our unique insights to bear on decision-making, and to be part of the solution to the challenges we face. It has been an exciting time of change and collaboration in Tasmania through the Government's Building and Construction Roundtable, and Consult Australia has been influential in shaping new ways of working that will leave a positive legacy of model client/industry relationships.

Tasmanian Office Lead and Principal Consultant, Strategic Advisory, Jacobs
(Chair, Tasmanian Committee)

Consult Australia continues to evolve in direct response to the needs and aspirations of all its member companies, large and small. Consult Australia is openly willing to take on issues that some might find too hard or otherwise beyond the scope of their perceived services mandate. These include support for continuous improvement of workplace culture within member companies, and seeking better value for money associated with major business operating expenses including PI and related insurance premiums.

Director, Hydricity Systems
(member for over 5 years)

Consult Australia membership is the richest company membership we hold. From the member resources, the contracts support and education, the industry and workplace trends and insight; the network opportunities and relationships with other member businesses and the support of the team, we get incredible value.

(member for over 5 years)

Our involvement with Consult Australia from a firm level, allows us to keep step with current industry challenges and advocacy that is meaningful to our business in advancing the consulting industry. We have involvement at the senior level through the committee and junior level through FutureNet engagement which allows a ripple benefit through the organisation.

At an individual level, as Chair, I have a seat at the table in key engagements with other industry bodies, clients and the market to further advocate for our position as consultants. The collegiate nature of the membership banding together towards a common advocacy area that is affecting our businesses is powerful and something I receive a great sense of achievement out of particularly when we are able to make positive inroads into our strategic priority areas.
