

Sharing the Code of Ethics with your team

Consult Australia members commit to upholding standards underpinned by the principles outlined in our Code of Ethics.

We encourage you to share your commitment to the Consult Australia Code of Ethics with your team using the following text as a guide:

Our commitment to collaboration, fairness and integrity

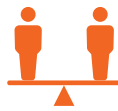

Our business is a proud member of Consult Australia, the only industry voice for businesses in design, advisory and engineering consulting.

Through our membership of Consult Australia we are committed as a business to uphold the professional standards outlined in the Consult Australia Code of Ethics, fortified by three core principles of collaboration, fairness and integrity:

Collaboration

Sharing ideas, skills, experience and building relationships to achieve shared goals.

Fairness

Treating everyone with respect, consistency and acting equitably.

Integrity

Acting honestly, authentically and being accountable.

Importantly, the Consult Australia Code of Ethics sets out specific obligations to clients, the community, and other Consult Australia members. You should familiarise yourself with the Code of Ethics, a reminder one page summary is also available.

Please be aware of the Code of Ethics and raise any concerns immediately.

The Code of Ethics should be read with the Guide on Consult Australia activities and avoiding anti-competitive behaviour.

If you are participating in Consult Australia activities you must also familiarise yourself with the Consult Australia Code of Conduct.

Now is the time to share and promote the values and principles you support through your membership of Consult Australia and our Code of Ethics.

We are proud of your commitment and encourage you to promote and share the collaborative leadership your membership of Consult Australia demonstrates.
